“Their music really relates to us retired folks”

THE RAYMERS

The Raymers, are a husband wife duet from Raytown, Missouri. He has been referred to as, “ the Norman Rockwell of music.” This comparison appeals to Ron Raymer because he also is an artist, having retired from a 37-year career at Hallmark Cards. However, the reference was made regarding his music rather than his artwork. Ron is a prolific songwriter and his songs seem to paint word pictures as they take the listener back to another time when life and times were simple and fun. Following one of their performances it is not unusual to hear such comments as, “I haven’t laughed this much for ages!” Or “I remember all the things they sang about; we had so much fun.” A common statement is, “This was one of the best programs we have had, definitely, the most creative!”

Creativity is what makes music fun for Ron and Arrena. His ideas spring from his humble upbringing in the Missouri Ozarks or from their courtship, from raising their family and now from experiencing retirement and RV travel. Their programs consist of all original songs. The subject matter includes nostalgic, humor, patriotic and gospel themes. Ron plays the guitar and sings lead while Arrena plays the upright bass and adds harmony. The tidbits that Ron shares between the songs concerning the inspiration add to the humor and interest of the program. You will want to include The Raymers on your entertainment calendar. You will find their program to be unique and very creative. But make sure you bring your hankie because there will be the possibility of tears, either from laughter or from nostalgia!
